Our client

Our client, Blackgoldust, is a research-driven healthcare company with a strong interest in cell regenerative nutrition. They specialise in developing products with green ingredients. They had developed a unique product - cell regenerating antioxidant that helps repair and regenerate body cells and tissues which is necessary to recover from cell related disorders (such as bronchial asthma, cysts, progressive and benign tumours, ulcers, paralysis due to stroke or trauma, coma, hysteria, cancer).

The product was created in the form of powder blend using an indigenously patented technology. However, this form was not quite viable as powder and needed to be delivered in liquid form to ensure maximum bioavailability. They soon zeroed down on capsules. The winner obviously was liquid-filled hard capsules because of its greater bioavailability enhancing ability in comparison to soft gelatin capsule.

Our collaboration

Soon, we were tasked with the first leg of the project – developing the powder into liquid-filled hard capsules. Our team of expert scientists were able to successfully formulate the product using our indigenously developed V-Fill™ technology.

Once, the development batches were ready, we worked in tangent with our client to manufacture a pilot batch and performed stability studies on this batch which yielded desirable results. We waited no further and proceeded with production batches which followed a smooth course.

All the support from development to commercial scale production was being extended to our client during the nation-wide lockdown that was announced at the time of the COVID-19 pandemic. However, despite this challenge, the project was accomplished in record time by closely collaborating with our client and bringing in integration at all levels.

“Vantage Nutrition helped us develop our product very smoothly in record time. It couldn't have been done better especially when the entire country was under lockdown.”
